

“WE CARE. WE FIGHT. WE LOVE, BUT WE’RE TREATED LIKE WE’RE FAILING”

Parent carers of disabled children are being classed under the same Children in Need framework as cases involving abuse or neglect.

This system doesn't see our love. It doesn't hear our exhaustion. It doesn't feel our trauma when we're investigated, judged, and monitored - simply because our child needs extra support.

Being a carer isn't a crime.
But the CIN label makes us feel like suspects
- not supporters.

We need compassion, not suspicion.
We need understanding, not scrutiny.
We don't need protection by the system
- we need protection from it.

Disability is not neglect. It's time the system saw the difference.

Join the movement. Demand a separate pathway for disability-related support
